In September 2015, the Fine-Art Photography Association (FAPA) will hold the second 'daikanyama photo fair'. The fair brings together the leading booksellers, galleries, and publishers of the art photography world to showcase the finest works of art photography from Japan and abroad. In September 2014, FAPA held its first photo fair "Hillside Terrace Photo Fair." This year, the fair will be expanded with even richer programs and held under its new title "daikanyama photo fair." In addition to the exhibitors' presentations, the fair will offer a wide range of public programs including artists' talks, book-signings, screenings, and workshops for both adults and children. In addition to viewing and purchasing photographic works, visitors will have opportunities to experience and learn about the world of art photography in new ways.
